

APPENDIX 5: Publications which have used information from BirdLife's Biodiversity Project

OVER the course of BirdLife International's Biodiversity Project, which began in 1987, several analyses of the data have been published, notably by ICBP/BirdLife in Putting biodiversity on the map: priority areas for global conservation (ICBP 1992) and Conserving Indonesian biodiversity:

the Endemic Bird Area approach (Sujatnika et al. 1995). Information on EBAs has also been used widely by other researchers and conservationists in their own priority-setting work. A selection of these publications is listed below.
